HISTORY

village of waunakee history

Welcome to Waunakee

Known as the Village of Leicester in 1870, the present Village of Waunakee was started the fall of that year and incorporated in 1893. The Chicago and Northwestern Railroad was extending its line to St. Paul at that time and officials of the railroad wished to locate a station in the area. A spot near the mill (located at Woodland Dr./Bong Road, intersection of Sixmile Creek) had been chosen. Located just two miles from the center of the present Waunakee, the railroad saw it as an excellent location.

Two early settlers, Mr. Lewis Baker and Mr. George Fish, owned land along the new railroad line and plotted a village on their property. In exchange for $1,500 and two miles of right of way, railroad officials changed their original plans and trains roared to a stop in what is now known as Waunakee.

The nearest post office at this time was located north of Waunakee and known as Lester (the intersection of Cuba Valley Road, Hwy 113 and McChesney Road). Some felt the new community should take that name. Mr. Fish and

Mr. Baker, not wanting to give or take credit for the founding of the community, requested Mr. Simeon Mills and Mr. Hill of Madison to supply a list of names. Waunakee was chosen and is Indian in origin, meaning, among other things, "the fair and pleasant valley."

The original plat of the village was dated January 30, 1871. The post office was moved from Lester to Waunakee sometime in 1872. The first building erected in town was a house on Second Street, built in 1870. The first business was a general store built on Main Street by Mr. Fred Bublman in the summer of 1871.

The 45,000 sq. ft. center, opened in 2006, is located at 333 South Madison St. and has activities and space for youth, senior citizens and everyone in between. Waunakee Senior Center

The utility office oversees electric, water and sewer, in and around the Village of Waunakee. Questions about services and charges may be directed to 849-8111.

History of the Waunakee Depot

In 1871, the Baraboo Air Line Railroad teamed up with the Chicago and North Western Railroad (C&NW) to negotiate where the railroad line should go from Madison, Wisconsin, to join with the Mississippi River. After hearing some disputes from the two railroad companies, four Waunakee area landowners, George Fish, Lewis Baker, Ira Bacon and Solomon Martin, donated two miles of the right-a-way and paid $1,500 to the railroad company to build the Station and allow the railroad to come through.

In 1871 the first depot was built and soon became the focus of a thriving agricultural economy. Farm products such as livestock, cream, tobacco and grains were shipped from the depot. In 1892 a fire that spread through Waunakee destroyed the depot, but a replacement was built in 1896 and that building remains today. Throughout the years, seven or eight agents manned the depot with Mr. Hubert L. Reeve serving for 50 years.

In 1925 The Waunakee Tribune reported on the depot: "The depot is receiving a coat of paint, grey, trimmed with brown. This is probably the closest we will get to a new depot, which has been promised." At one time 60 trains passed through Waunakee daily, 14 of them passenger trains including the famous C&NW "400". In recent years several trains pass through town most days. Passenger service was discontinued in 1963 when the last passenger train, number 519, departed from Waunakee. In 1971, the depot was closed and locked for the last time by station agent, Bob King.

In the mid 1970's the Waunakee Arts Council spearheaded an effort to restore the depot to its original condition. Local volunteers and the Seabees of Madison Naval Reserve Center made needed repairs including a new paint job and replacing the roof shingles. In 1977, the depot was purchased from the railroad for $12,000. Funding was in the form of a gift from Mr. Bob Reeve, a son of the early agent Hubert Reeve. In 1978 the depot and the grounds were dedicated as "Reeve Park" in memory of the father and son. Also, that year, the depot was placed on the National Register of Historic Places.

In 1995, through the efforts of many interested residents, the depot made its home on a new foundation that was built on the park grounds. Today it is the home office of the Waunakee Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Waunakee Society of Model Railroaders displays a 1950's layout depicting the Chicago & North Western Railway from Madison to Rock Springs in the lower level of the depot. The society works on the display the second and fourth Wednesday of each month from 7-9 p.m. For more information contact: Waunakee Society of Model Railroaders: Allen Hinck, (608) 849-7703. 100 E. WESTPORT town of westport history

From the History of Dane County – Author Unknown, Circa 1885

The Town of Westport derives its name from Westport, Ireland, from which place many of its early settlers came.

The Town is watered by the Yahara River, which enters the northeast part of the Town on Section 13, and flows southwesterly into Lake Mendota, and also by Six Mile Creek which enters the Town on the northwestern part, on Section 6, flows southeasterly and empties into the Catfish on Section 27. The northeastern part of Westport is prairie land, the central and southeasterly portions marsh, and the remaining parts oak openings and prairie. Lake Mendota covers a part of five sections on the southern part.

Louis Montondon, a Frenchman, and Edward Boyles, an Irishman, were the first settlers in the Town, coming here in the fall of 1845. They built their cabin on Section 20. In 1818, a number of others came in, among whom were Messrs, Burdick, Tower, Bradbury, Rodgers, O'Malley, Collins, Fitzgibbon and Ruddy. Still later, came Matthew Roach, P.R. Tierney, J. Welsh, William O'Keefe, Lawrence O'Keefe, and Martin Reade. Although the first settlers were mostly Irish, and that nationality predominates at this time, a large number of Americans, Germans, Norwegians, and representatives of other nations, have made their homes here.

In the central part of the Town is a Catholic Church building, built in 1860, by the Rev. P. J. Lavans.

Westport is the home of Miss Ella Wheeler, whose poems are read by thousands in all parts of the land.

On Six Mile Creek was a grist-mill, built by E.D. Churchill, in 1860, who sold to William Packbrom, who ran it until 1876 when it was sold to John Bowerman.

The Town is well supplied with quarries, and the cream stone, used in the building of the Government Court House and Post Office in Madison, was obtained from the quarry on Section 11, and which the United States government purchased for that purpose. The Stone was exhibited and much admired at the Centennial, as were also some of the other products of the Town.

A branch of Chicago & North Western Railway passes through the town, from northwest to southeast, with Mendota station on the hospital farm and Waunakee on Section 5 and 8, on the northwest.

The first Town meeting election was held in the house of Michael O'Malley on March 31, 1849. The Officers elected were: Chairman; Michael O'Malley, John Collins and Louis Montanda. Town Clerk; Thomas O'Malley replaced by Thomas R. Hill after O'Malley resigned. Treasurer; Thomas Butts, Assessor; John Bradbury.

The territory for the Township 8 north, of Range 9 east, except so much as was covered by the water of Lake Mendota which is part of the City of Madison.
